Tribal Nova wins Best 2010 VCF Company Award

Montreal, Canada, February 22, 2010 –Tribal Nova, a company specialized in the development and marketing of virtual worlds and educational online games for the youth market, has won the 2010 Best VCF Company Award at the 6th edition of the Venture Capital Forum on February 3rd 2010. The Prize is awarded to the company that presented the most impressive business plan.

Tribal Nova was initially preselected from a large pool of entries. From those, a short list of 18 technology based candidates seeking financing were offered the opportunity to present their company to a jury of seasoned management and investment professionals as well as to several important Venture Capital funds. At the end of the forum, the jury awarded Tribal Nova its Best 2010 VCF Company award.

Tribal Nova was represented by its CEO, Eric Brassard. “We are honored by this important recognition from the financial community” stated Brassard. “This award is a tribute to Tribal Nova’s solid growth in the highly sought area of Web 2.0. We’re fast becoming a leading emerging player on the international stage.”

The Venture Capital Forum has existed since 2005, sponsored and organized by the Montreal chapter of the French Chamber of Commerce. Every year, an independent jury chooses 20 Canadian and French companies based on their innovative character, the expertise of the team presenting the project, the development perspectives and the sustainability of their plan.

About the French Chamber of Commerce in Canada : Since its creation in 1886, the French Chamber of Commerce in Canada, organizer of the event, has for objective to develop economic relations between France and Canada. The Chamber has over 1,500 members in Canada. Its Support Service to Enterprises offers a wide range of services adapted to the needs of all types of enterprises. <http://www.cfcmtl.ca/>
